DIARY NOTES

DD/S

29 June 1966

Emmett Echols called and said he had to give an answer tonight on how many summer employees of the Agency are to attend the Government-wide briefing sessions to be held later in the summer. It was suggested and I agreed that we take an arbitrary number so as not to advertise the size of our summer program. The number was set at approximately 350-400. This was done because some would not attend for cover purposes, others have previously attended such sessions, and some will not want to go.
